

25 Lecture - CS101

Important Subjective

1. What is MS Access?

Answer: MS Access is a relational database management system developed by Microsoft.

2. What are some of the advantages of using MS Access?

Answer: Some of the advantages of using MS Access include its ease of use, scalability, and security features.

3. What is a table in MS Access?

Answer: A table in MS Access is a collection of data organized into rows and columns.

4. What is a query in MS Access?

Answer: A query in MS Access is a request for data that meets specific criteria.

5. How can MS Access be used to automate repetitive tasks?

Answer: MS Access can be used to automate repetitive tasks by creating macros that perform specific actions automatically.

6. What are some of the security features provided by MS Access?

Answer: Some of the security features provided by MS Access include the ability to set permissions for different database objects and encryption features to protect sensitive data.

7. What is a form in MS Access?

Answer: A form in MS Access is a user interface that allows users to input data into a database.

8. What is a report in MS Access?

Answer: A report in MS Access is a formatted presentation of data from a database.

9. How can MS Access be used to manage large amounts of data?

Answer: MS Access can be used to manage large amounts of data by creating multi-user databases that can be shared across a network.

10. What is a primary key in MS Access?

Answer: A primary key in MS Access is a field or combination of fields that uniquely identifies each record in a table.