

6 Lecture - CS101

Important Subjective

1. What are some examples of technology-related careers that do not require a degree in computer science?

Answer: Graphic design, business administration, and sales are all examples of technology-related careers that do not require a degree in computer science.

2. Why is it important to have a basic understanding of technology?

Answer: Having a basic understanding of technology can be helpful in many different career paths and can make you a more valuable employee.

3. Can you learn how to code without attending college or university?

Answer: Yes, there are many resources available for learning how to code online, such as coding tutorials, YouTube videos, and online forums.

4. What are some free resources available online for learning how to code?

Answer: Some free resources available online for learning how to code include coding tutorials, YouTube videos, and online forums.

5. Is it necessary to have a degree in computer science to be successful in technology-related careers?

Answer: No, there are many different technology-related careers that do not require a degree in computer science.

6. What is the difference between hardware and software?

Answer: Hardware refers to the physical components of a computer, while software refers to the programs that run on the computer.

7. Can you teach yourself how to code?

Answer: Yes, it is possible to teach yourself how to code through online resources and coding boot camps.

8. What are some examples of basic computer problems that you should know how to troubleshoot?

Answer: Examples of basic computer problems include slow performance, connectivity issues, and software glitches.

9. Should you explore different career paths before deciding on a career in technology?

Answer: Yes, it is important to explore different career paths before deciding on a career in technology to find the best fit for your skills and interests.

10. Is it ever too late to start learning about technology?

Answer: No, it is never too late to start learning about technology, and there are many resources available for individuals of all ages and skill levels.